NO JOB TOO SMALL.

Blood clot cells and healthy blood cells were modeled in Hash Animation Master then brought into Corel Bryce where bump map textures and color were applied as well as lighting. The fibers (left image) were illustrated in Adobe Photoshop.

Entire 3D scene created in Corel Bryce. Even the dog's footprints are 3D. Color balance of dog photo and other minor modifications utilize Adobe Photoshop.

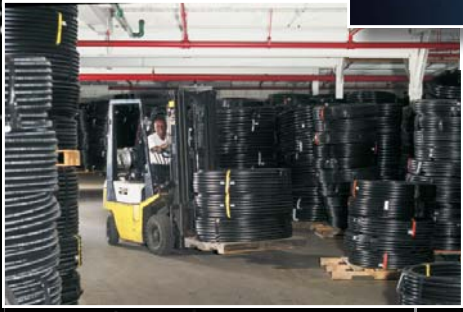

NO JOB TOO BIG.

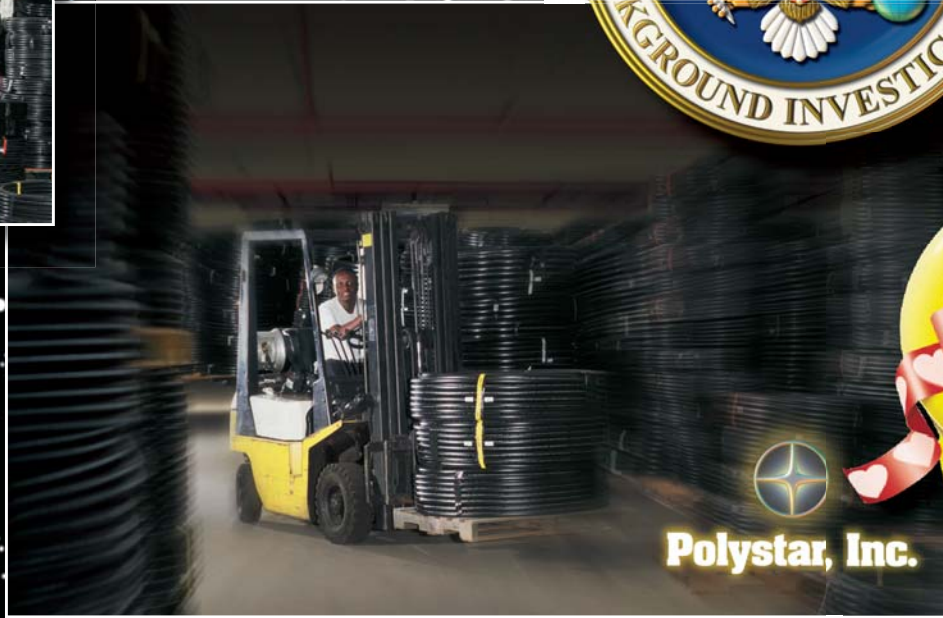

Tough Retouching

Art director wanted more of a nighttime feeling to the room while maintaining a sense of light through the sheer curtains. Photo had to be significantly extended on both sides.

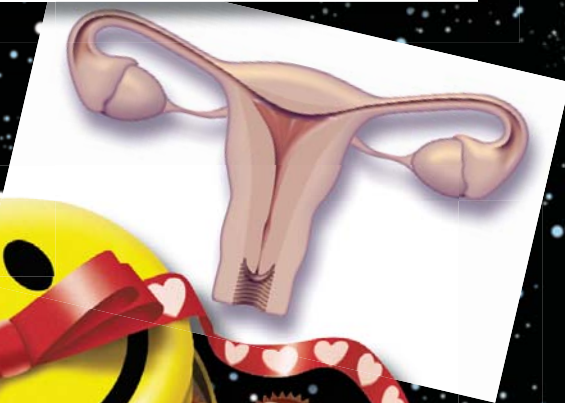

Challenge: take an ordinary warehouse shot that is very cluttered and make it a dramatic background where additional pictures and reverse copy can be placed. Draw attention to forklift, but keep feeling of a full, well-stocked warehouse.

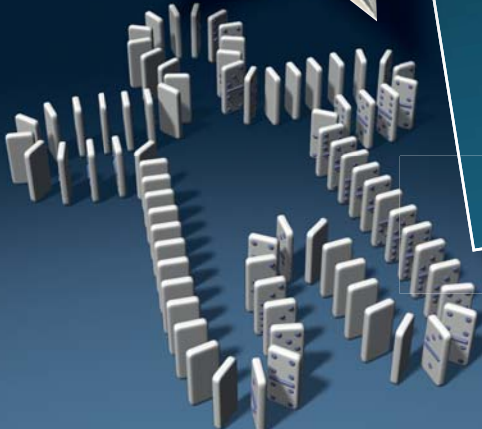

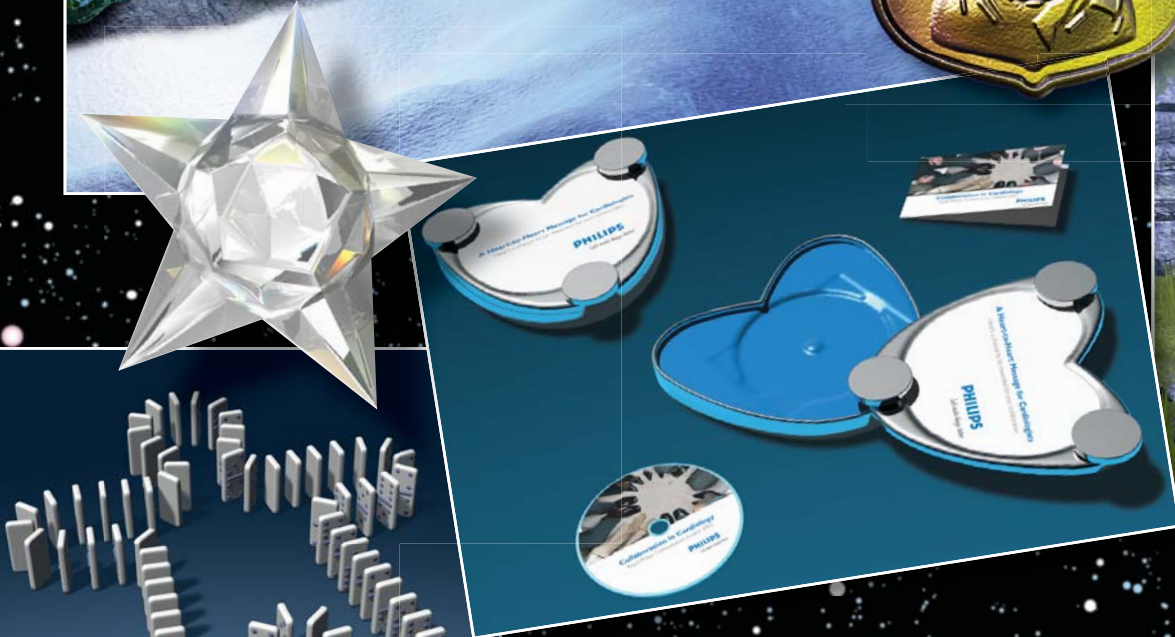

Realistic Illustration

2D illustrations created using Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop including product and medical illustration

3D Illustration

Models, textures, lighting, and renderings created using a variety of 3D programs.
